

*Now you can preserve your gown for the next generation
... with Elite Cleaner's Museum-Style Heirloom Preservation System*

Few things are as cherished as a wedding gown. After the careful planning of selecting the perfect gown, many brides choose to preserve their dress as a keepsake. A properly heirloomed gown enables the dream of passing it down to a daughter, relative or close family friend.

While a gown may be worn just one day and not appear soiled, it still requires careful cleaning. Some stains, not immediately visible, will develop with age causing discoloration, fabric weakness and damage to the gown. We preserve your gown using the safest methods of removing body oils, make-up, hemline stains plus food and beverage spills.

Our wedding gown specialists carefully examine every gown, establishing the safest method of cleaning. Inspections are made at every stage of the cleaning and preservation process. Each wedding gown receives painstaking and individual handling with attention given to every detail.

Your Museum Style storage box features state-of-the-art moisture and oxygen control technology. Traditional wedding gown storage boxes do not protect or guarantee against oxidation or “yellowing” of the gown. Our advanced system guarantees that your gown will remain as beautiful as the day you wore it down the aisle.

Here's how... Your dress is carefully sealed in an acid-free inner box that controls humidity. The oxygen is purged and replaced with an inert gas, making oxidation virtually impossible. Our vacuum sealed packaging allows viewing of your gown and veil at any time, while protecting them from mold, mildew, insect damage and oxidation. The inner box is placed in a durable long-term storage chest for additional safe-keeping.
